

NATIONAL WILDLIFE GRANTS
Al & Joanie Stone, National Directors for Wildlife

If you enjoy wildlife, take the initiative this year and submit a Wildlife Grant for a possible grant in 2012.

There are so many organizations throughout the country that need your help to continue that great work in preserving and protecting our wildlife. The grant can be for educational purposes, healing injured animals and fowls, building housing for animals that are injured and providing feeding areas.

Now is the time of the year, that we, as your National Wildlife Directors, encourage our members in FCRV to be thinking about submitting Wildlife Grant applications. The application is on the FCRV web under Wildlife. Remember to submit good back-up materials that will substantiate what you are requesting. The organization needs to write a letter on their behalf for the need of the grant in which you will submit with your paperwork to us. If you have any questions of whether the cause you are thinking about will fit the program please don't hesitate to contact us.

We would love to see some grants coming from other areas that have not submitted grants before.

All grants must be submitted to us by no later than May 20, 2012 this year. Remember that there are many organizations out there that can use your help. We are looking forward to receiving several grant applications for 2012.
